Council Declines to give Increased Relief Help

A meeting of M.D. Bigstone No. 459 Council held September 15th at Lone Ridge.

Present: C. J. Hanson (reeve), M. H. Unland, O. P. Nelson, Herman Strohschein, J. E. Rickard and F. B. Green.

Minutes of August meeting were read and adopted as read on motion by Coun. Strohschein.

T. H. Cummins offered to purchase the N.W. 1/4 Sec. 6-45-27-4 and fraction of S.E. 1/4 Sec. 7-45-27-4 for a total of $175.00. This offer was accepted subject to the approval of the Minister and subject to the following terms—$25.00 cash and $50.00 per annum until paid.

C. Isaacson offered to purchase the N.W. 1/4 Sec. 30-46-27-4 for $150.00 cash. This offer was accepted subject to the approval of the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Letter from Dr. Shillaber was read re operation performed on a resident of the district and enclosing account for same. Secretary was instructed to take this matter up with the Department of Public Health.

It was brought to the attention of the Council that improvements were now being carried on on the S.E. 1/4, 18-46-27-4. Motion by a Councilor that current Wild Lands Tax on this land be cancelled was carried.

Letter was read from Mrs. Blanchard appealing for an increase in her allowance under the Mother's Allowance Act. Council refused to recommend an increase as the Government had notified them that no funds were available for any increase in allowances but decreased wherever possible and asking that existing allowances be maintained.

Mr. McWhinnie of the Richardson Road Machinery Co. interviewed the Council on matters of business.

A. Frame, District Engineer, spoke to the Council in connection with the road across Indian Reserve 135A. It was found necessary to expend at least $120.00 on this road to make it passable. Council agreed to provide half of this amount if the Department

Canadian Memorial Nears Completion

A British and a German soldier lying hand-in-hand in death is one of the grim discoveries made during the building of the £200,000 Canadian memorial to the "Missing" on Vimy Ridge. It has taken nine years to build and will be unveiled in 1925. It is the most remarkable memorial on the Western front.

It records the names of over 11,000 Canadian "Missing" in the fighting in France in 1915-18. It weighs over 50,000 tons, and rests on a bed of 15,000 tons of concrete.

The body of a German general has also been found on the site, and as yet this year two German soldiers were unearthed two feet below the surface.

The memorial stands over the famous Gunner Tunnel, a vast network of underground galleries excavated during the war and used as assembly trenches for the troops in the battle for Vimy Ridge. One of these subterranean works was struck when the foundations were dug.

"The memorial is a sermon on the futility of war," said Mr. Walter Allward, the architect and sculptor. "Vindictiveness and Hate have been excised from my design. In my original drawings I had a foot trampling on a German steel helmet. Even that symbol I have removed."

The whole of Europe was searched for a stone that, in such an exposed position as Vimy, would weather and endure for centuries hence.

This was found near where were fired the shots that hastened the Great War. Mr. Allward leased an old Roman quarry in Jugoslavia that had not been worked since the fourth century; from those quarries 3,000 tons of stone have been shipped to France.

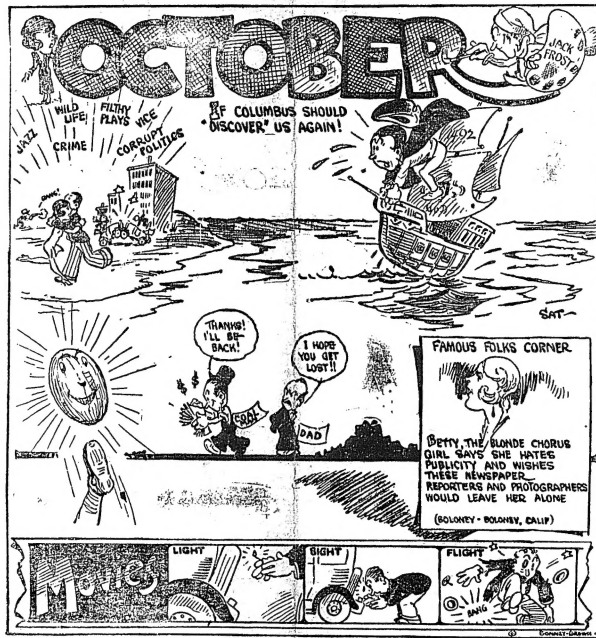

Beneath two huge pylons, representing Canada and France, the heroic figure of Canada broods over her dead. Twenty sculptured figures, including Peace, Justice, Truth, and Knowledge, each twice life-size, are striking features of the monument.

DECLARES OPEN SEASON FOR RUFFED GROUSE

Open season for ruffed grouse has been declared by Hon. George Hoadley, minister in charge of the game branch, and these birds may now be hunted between October 1 and October 15 in the territory north of the Red Deer river, west of Nevis, and of the Coronation line of the C.P.R. from Nevis to the eastern boundary of the province. By this order ruffed grouse, which for some years past have been excepted from the section of the game act covering other species of grouse, have been put back on even terms with other grouse. The bag limit for any and all kinds of grouse, including the ruffed, will be five birds per day and 25 for the season.

In anticipation of the repeal of prohibition in the United States early in 1934, an American syndicate purchased in Glasgow 600,000 gallons of Scotch whiskey, which will be held in bond until it can be shipped to the United States.

REV. DR. DICKSON LECTURES AT UNITED CHURCH

On Tuesday evening at the United Church a delightful program of music brief in numbers but excellent in quality, preceded the lecture of Rev. Dr. Dickson, president of the Alberta Conference, and for the past ten years minister of Knox United Church, Calgary. Choosing as his topic "Let's be Cheery," or Living on the Sunny Side of Life, the Dr. went along with a racy survey of the moods and tenor of our life.

His stories were salty with wisdom and his shafts of satire went home to the heart piercing our foibles and follies. There was not only a lovely tone of the Scot to his voice, but a pawky humor enlivened the discourse. "Inspirational and down to where we live" might rightly characterize the address. While Dr. Dickson is known far better in Southern Alberta than here, he may rest assured that a return lecture will not find a packed house to greet him.

Mrs. Tony Johnston and Mr. Mathers of Edmonton, were soloists; and

The Wetaskiwin girls' softball team defeated Falun in a close game by a score of 10-8.

PARASITE DESTROYING STORED GRAIN

Something new is happening in the grain trade. A microscopic organism is attacking the stored grain in the elevator bins and consuming or destroying the grain on the spot. It is impossible to discern this organism without a glass of considerable power, but the results can be seen with the naked eye.

Departmental and grain company officials have been concerned for some time, but the fact has not been generally known by the public.

One of the Claresholm elevators is this week running twenty-five thousand bushels of affected grain through the cleaner in an effort to eradicate the pest. The only grain affected is that in storage from previous years.—Claresholm Press.

LIBRARY NOTES

Several new books were received this week from the publishers, among them the following:

"Vanessa" by Hugh Walpole. The fourth and concluding volume of the Herries chronicle. A novel panoramic of glittering balls, pageants, golden jubilees, all Victorian England. Brings the Herries family up to modern times, as perhaps the second family of England.

"A White Bird Flying," by Bess Streeter Aldrich author of "A Lantern in Her Hand." Where in "A Lantern in Her Hand" the author portrayed the pioneer generation, in "A White Bird Flying" she shows also the second and third generations from the pioneers. It is a compelling love story which rings a high note, and back of the personal lives of the characters one sees the changes which have come over the prairie states since the pioneers first came into the country in their covered wagon.

"Lark Ascending," by Mazo de la Roche. This is essentially a novel of contrast—a story of light and shade—a contrast of Sicilian exuberance with the restraints of life in a Massachusetts fishing village. It finds the author in a new vein. Here is a narrative lighter in quality than those which have to do with the turbulent Jalna scene, but so less sure in its characterization; no less picturesque in its detail.

Dr. George Dickson of Calgary, was the principal speaker at the Kwantlen luncheon Tuesday evening. He held the gathering spell-bound as he referred to some of the elements which makes a man's life a success. He announced his subject as a talk on relative values or the test of real success. He cited several instances where men who were looked upon as successful in the business world were colossal failures insofar as doing the really worth while things of this life were concerned, while on the other hand men who felt that their lives were failures had achieved things which were real blessings to mankind. To what extent have we given of ourselves along the trail of life. A man's success should be judged by the number of people who are made better and happier because he has lived. Dr. Dickson also referred very wittily to some of his experiences as a speaker over the radio. Rev. A. R. Schrag introduced the speaker to the club, and W. H. Odell thanked Dr. Dickson for his very able address.

It was decided to hold Ladies' night on October 24th, with a banquet and dance, at the Grand Hotel.

Three women detectives appointed

After having served as detectives for a probationary period of 12 months, three members of the women police at Scotland Yard have been definitely appointed to the Criminal Investigation Department.

The experiment began last year was closely watched by the authorities at Scotland Yard, and it is stated that the women who now become detectives have proved that they can be employed with confidence in almost every type of criminal detection, in particular the contention that women criminals would treat women detectives with scant respect has proved to be without foundation. Investigations in connection with traffic in dangerous drugs, shoplifting, raids on shops by prowling thieves, and hand-to-hand matching are but a few of the duties successfully carried out by women police, some of whom have acted as decoys when required to do so by their superiors. They have proved very useful, too, in discovering hangers-on favored by women who are associated with gangs of criminals in the London area.—London (Eng.) Times.

Complaints have reached the school officials that book store are buying up all used textbooks, making it impossible for students to obtain the books at fair prices. Plans to have students exchange their books with other students have been started to combat the situation.

Coote's Story Points a Good Lesson

The Edinburgh Herald "Left Hand Corner" has collected this little story from the Edmonton Journal attributed to George Coote.

To the man in the valley the hill looks like a mountain; to the man on top of the hill, it stands revealed as a free ripple in contrast to the great mountain range beyond. So in life, obstacles to a course of action seem great or small depending on one's position. It is even necessary, sometimes, to make the approach from an entirely new angle if the obstacle to progress is to be overcome.

When George Coote, M.P., was in Edmonton recently, he told a story to some of his friends. It is a good story and worth repeating for its own sake but it carries with it a lesson, too, for those who wish to learn.

Driving to Grammon, in the south of the province, a motorist became rather confused over the route and sought advice from a child farmer who stood by a fence disconsolately gazing at what a recent storm had done to his crop.

"Is this the road to Grammon?" the driver asked.

The old chap turned slowly, pushed his hat further back on his head, pondered awhile and announced "Yes. Go straight ahead for half a mile, then turn to your right for a mile, then turn to your left for—No. That won't do either. The bridge was washed out there. You can't get across."

"Well, is there any other road?" Another pause for thought and the farmer decided it would be possible for the motorist to turn back for half a mile, go to the left for a mile and a half and turn left again for—No, he interrupted himself. "That won't do either. You'll get your car stuck in a mud rut and you'll never get through."

Another pause and the now impatient motorist put it to the old gentleman bluntly: "Well, if you were going to Grammon, how would you go?"

"Two minutes of deep thought this time and then came the answer: "If I was going to Grammon, I wouldn't start from here."

The old gentleman's advice is pressed on to those who after vast changes in mother of life as the only true reforms as well as to those who reject them as wholly impossible. Progress won step by step is not only surer even if slower, but with each step taken the view changes—and what appeared as a mountain when viewed from the valley, soon sinks to its proper perspective as but a small obstacle in the road. "Here" is not always the best place from which to jump for "there."

Alberta Liberals Express Views Before Commission

The following are a few excerpts taken from the Brief submitted by Mr. W. R. Howson, leader of the Liberal Party in Alberta, to the Commission on Banking, which held sittings throughout Canada recently:

This Brief is filed as an official statement in a political sense of the Liberal Party in Alberta in relation to the questions under consideration, but rather as representing some common ground held by that large body of Alberta citizens namely all those of Liberal views and ideas whose voice might not otherwise be heard before this Commission were it not for the presentation of this Brief.

The applicants are privileged to say that they speak on the subjects under consideration for tens of thousands of citizens of Alberta broadly of every class and occupation, followers of agriculture, mining, fishing, lumbering, commerce, industry and the professions, who have in past years approved and supported the policies and programs of the Liberal Members of the Legislative Assembly of Alberta in relation to public affairs and who continue to do so at the present time. Furthermore, we think it desirable to record for the information of the Commission that on October 21st, 1932, three assemblies in Edmonton in General Convention, four hundred and forty-four accredited delegates appointed by and chosen from among those citizens of Alberta for the discussion of various public matters, policies and resolutions, amongst others the resolution dealing with the Canadian banking system and monetary policy and proposing the establishment of a Central National Bank of Canada.

In the first place the applicants subscribe to the following two propositions enunciated by His Lordship the Chairman of the Commission:

(1) "Banks cannot create wealth or themselves, but they can help industry to do so."
(2) "The banking system is . . . the servant of the public"; and to these we desire to add as in our opinion a fundamental proposition that it is the people of this Province themselves who create new wealth in the Province by the exercise of their labor, skill, industry and ability, by placing existing capital in legitimate uses and by the wise safeguarding and development of Alberta's natural resources.

On the other hand we believe it to be generally admitted that there is a clear distinction between the creation of new wealth and the creation of new currency and credit.

The creation, issue, regulation and control of money credit and rates of interest are in our submission functions of and properly exercisable by governmentally controlled institutions, and we feel that these functions have in very large measure been delegated or handed over to joint stock banking corporations and that they must now be taken equally as a large measure to surrender their back.

We like issue with any who may seek to destroy rather than to improve and regulate them to meet and serve present public interest and requirements. Our first and most immediate concern is with practical matters, namely, improvements, regulations and remedies by which the banking system may quickly become a positive and constructive factor in the restoration of prosperity to Alberta, rather than to experiment with unproved and untried theories. We are also concerned with orderly progress and in consequence it is sufficient to say that we do not debar ourselves from careful study and examination as occasion may arise of any proposal affecting banking or credit in Alberta no matter how far-reaching or how vital the consequences which may ensue to the institutions themselves. In these connections however, we note on economic, constitutional and other grounds the desirability, indeed almost the necessity, of unity of action throughout the Dominion and that no one or more of the Provinces east or west can enforce whatever views it may hold on the subjects under discussion.

Submissions
Our chief criticism of the banking system and institutions of Canada is that, as it presently stands the officers and management selected by the shareholders of the banking corporations must and do primarily concern themselves with the making of profits for those shareholders, and that this motive while it may assist in providing security for the depositors has not met the necessities of public credit requirements, indeed we say that from time to time, and at the present time, this motive comes into direct conflict with what we believe to be the paramount right of the people. There is at present lacking from the system any direct or powerful instrument in which is centralized the control and issue of currency and credit having in mind the public interest and functioning for the public benefit uninfluenced by motives of private profit. We note that within the scope of the inquiry by this Commission the advisability of establishing a central banking institution is mentioned last. We regard this as of first importance and therefore make it the subject of our first submission.

We now respectfully make the five proposals and ask the consideration of the same by the members of the Commission.

(1) A Central National Bank of Canada

We feel it likely to explain that the resolution proposed before the Convention heretofore referred to, received prolonged and careful discussion and after consideration was in its final form unanimously approved and carried as follows:

"Banking and Monetary Policy—We believe that the control of money by an credit is a very strong factor in the recovery of the primary industries of this country from the present serious depression into which they have fallen.

"We believe that on the foundation of a sound trade policy, commodity prices can be improved by an intelligent control of credit and the issue of money. The first step to be taken in this connection is the establishment of an institution which can properly attend to this problem.

"We, therefore favor the establishment, at the next revision of the Canadian Bank Act, of a Central National Bank of Redoubt, whose function it will be to direct and control the issue of currency and the extension of credit through the banks of this country."

The Raising and Stabilization of Price Levels

Unquestionably the main object of the Convention in passing the above resolution was directed to the raising and stabilization of price levels. The general functions and operation of central banking institutions have been so often described and are so familiar to the members of this Commission that we need not dwell on them in any detail in this Brief, other than to say that the Convention had in mind a Central Bank, which would control the redoubt rate and the issue of currency during artificial boom times and a check on over-expansion and rendering more easily available an expansion of credit in times of depression. The Convention also expected of the Central Bank, during boom times, the sale of securities in large blocks and the taking in of corresponding amounts of liquid currency and during depressions the purchase of Governmental and other securities and the corresponding increase of deposits in the banks of the country in turn become available to those requiring and entitled to credit, in substance what are customarily described as "open market operations."

The prosperity of Alberta admittedly depends in the main on the primary industries and for some years past there has been a disastrous drop in the selling price of their products which has reduced and indeed in innumerable cases made it practically impossible for primary producers to pay off the credit received by them some years ago. Principals, and interest rates on borrowed money were incurred at times when commodity prices if maintained at their then level would in ordinary course have made it possible to meet these obligations. The relationship between debtor and creditor has not been and therefore requires to be placed on a more equitable basis. We do not make the banking system the scape goat of all our ills, but it is not an over statement to say that with the drop in prices and the added handicap of heavy and rapid increase in taxation, the savings and reserves set aside from more prosperous years by great masses of the people in Alberta are largely exhausted, and that their credit is also exhausted and that they see ahead misery and in many cases complete ruin. This state of affairs could have been avoided to a large extent and to a still larger extent the evil effects minimized by a more flexible system of credits from our banks at substantially reduced interest rates.

Abandonment of the Gold Standard
On this point our submission is that Canada has not been on a gold standard basis for some years in respect of internal and domestic matters and we urge that it is desirable and in the interests of Alberta and of the Dominion as a whole, that Canada should fully officially and permanently abandon the gold standard at least for the present time and for so long as Great Britain and United States remain off. Directly and indirectly we say the abandonment of the gold standard as urged in this paragraph will materially assist the people of this Province in procuring mortgages, interest, loans and other charges and obligations, many of which are going into default at the present time.

Monetary Policy, the Issue and Control of Currency and Control of Interest

We submit that these are all major functions and solely and rightly belong to the proposed Central Bank. A properly managed and controlled currency, regardless of the basis on which it is secured with the issue of the same retained by and in the hands of the Central Bank will be a powerful instrument for the well being of the people of Canada.

Certainly in our submission the control and issue of currency and the extension of interest rates have been too largely in the hands of the Banks of Canada and arbitrarily dealt with from the point of view of banks and banking rather than the people of Canada. We however, purposely refrain from a detailed examination or criticism of the existing provisions of the Bank Act, the Dominion Notes Act, the Finance Act, or the Currency Act specially mentioned as being within the scope of this inquiry.

As to interest rates we request it as important that this should include the control and fixing of interest on deposit as well as on loans.

Reduced Rates of Interest
We emphatically join with all who may appear before the Commission to ask for reduction of interest rates. The provisions of the Bank Act restrict the interest rate to 7 per cent but this is more honored in the breach than in the observance, and rates of 8 per cent and higher, with quarterly compounding adding substantially to the rate, are the rule. This constitutes an intolerable burden at the present time particularly on the individual producer and small business man. Cheaper credit is absolutely vital.

In this connection we desire to add that we have been informed that roughly speaking 90 per cent of the assets and resources of the banks belong to the shareholders in the form of capital stock and reserves and that the remaining 10 per cent belong to the public, the depositors, and the Government and Municipal Financing.

Our submission on this point is two-fold, namely:

(1) That the proposed Central Bank be given power and required to accept the bonds of the provinces and of municipalities as security for the loans it is authorized to make. (2) That the Central Bank be allowed to charge on such financing a rate of interest sufficient only to cover the bare cost of operation plus a reasonable percent to build up a safe reserve.

Interlocking Directorates

We have very definite views on this submission. We feel that no man should at one and the same time be a borrower and lender to himself. We say that he has no right to pass on loans in which he is directly or indirectly interested. For this reason we also ask that interlocking directorates and we urge the Commission to recommend statutory amendments prohibiting anyone from acting at the same time as director of a Bank and as a director of any corporation or other business borrowing from that particular Bank.

The directors of the Banks having regard to the large amount of assets belonging to them should have some say in the selection of bank directors and management, and should also have seats

ODD—but True!

ONE SOLUTION

I haven't any knowledge of political economy; I'm just a common paster of a quilt; I never studied Euclid or the Masters of astronomy; All mathematics bothered me, but still I think the man who buys should pay his bill.

For the problems which are intricate, I offer no solution, I know that water doesn't run up hill. For high financial matters I'm no gift or education. I think the man who can should pay his bill. And no system's any good unless he will.

I hear the little merchants telling just how much men owe them. And how slowly cash is coming to the till.

And some of them are rich folks for I've heard their names and know them. They continue asking shops their wants to fill. But appear to be insulted by a bill.

I haven't any knowledge of inflation or deflation. And I haven't any canned ware to spill. I merely think 'twould help us all throughout this troubled nation if every one who can would pay his bill.

And 'twould give the little merchant such a thrill.

I heard them on the board of each Bank, and that they could not be easily in the hands of the shareholders.

Right of Appeal

The right of appeal proposes a direct contact between the individual and the Central Bank authorities. It is suggested that the Central Bank will be in any event have regional inspectors in each Province and that it should be one of the duties of the Inspector to summarily hear and dispose of appeals which may be made to him against the refusal or insufficient allowance of what the Applicant believes he is justly entitled to in the way of banking facilities or credit.

Hints for the Household

(By Betty Webster)

October days are becoming cooler and, although fresh fruits have solved the dessert problem during the warm weather, the men, especially, want heavier things now and pies seem to answer that craving.

A good pie crust is the pride of every experienced cook the envy of all poor ones and the desire of each novice. However there is no reason why, if you follow directions, your pie crust should not be tender and flaky. In the last column you will find two recipes, for the first of which everything must be ice cold, and for the second, everything warm and the water boiling.

So you see, you have your choice as to method and either ought to make a perfect crust. If you try one or the other I am sure that you will be the object of much admiration from every body in the community.

Unique Pencils

I saw the cleverest pencils the day it is placed in the ice-box?

Other day — so easy to make, too, and lovely for bride parties. Smooth pencils about four inches long dipped into gilt paint and allowed to dry. Then a tassel is fastened to the end of each with red sealing wax. Over the red is then dipped black and then gold wax. Of course, you may select your own color scheme but I have found this one very effective with an elegant tassel.

Do You Know That:

1. Lemon Juice added to blueberries when the latter are used in pies, gives a flavor to the otherwise tasteless fruit?
2. The white of egg rubbed over the unbaked crust before a watery filling (such as rhubarb) is added will keep the pie crust from becoming soggy?
3. The crust will keep for several days if it is placed in the ice-box?

"No! But I know where it is."
"So do I. It's somewhere in the bedroom. What's the use of knowing where it is unless you can lay hands on it? I can't go out meeting people without a collar—I mean go without a collar meeting people—and telling them that I know where my collar is and can't find it. I should be certified within a week."

"Well, a mouse's hole there, dear. It's gone down a hole."

"What hole?"
"Oh, for goodness sake be grammatical and call it a mouse's hole. Otherwise I shall start crying."

"But we haven't any mice—only a canary. Both would be equally interesting to the cat, and, I suppose, to the mouse."

"Yes, but I don't know where the mouse's hole is. Perhaps when that funny old lady lived here. Anyhow, there's a small hole in the corner of the room close by the dressing table. Your stud must have fallen into it. Come up and see."

"All right, dear. Soon as I've done with the marmalade."

Rupert went up two minutes later and inspected the office.

"Undoubtedly a hole perforated at some time by the mouse. Why I didn't notice it I don't know, except that I suppose I must have been blinded with dust while grunting."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Phyllis. "Mrs. Spinks gives me the room a thorough clean-out once a week."

"Yes, I know she does, and makes it dustier than ever. When I come up to bed after her visitations I start sneezing and think that somebody's been throwing pepper about. However let us not wrangle, child of my dreams. Light of my life, hope of my world, and was I believe you have scored a bull's eye. Since my stud is not in the room it is obviously under the room. I'll go and get a chisel."

Consternation wrote a plain signature on Phyllis's brow.

"You're not going to rip up those lovely stained boards to find a penny stud," she exclaimed.

"Certainly I am. I have the pleasure to consider. Besides—" he looked closer—"they have been ripped up before. Anyhow, I can plunk 'em down again."

While she was still protesting he bounced down the stairs, and within half a minute he had bounced up again in the oven. Go on, or else—

And strangely enough Rupert went, with the abandoned air of an unwilling dog ordered from the room. The fact that he was hungry and secretly wanted his breakfast may have had something to do with this. While he ate he heard Phyllis bumping about on the floor just as she had heard him some while since.

He had just reached the marmalade stage when Phyllis halted him through the door. Here, catch hold. You have a look."

And he began feverishly to insert the hitherto missing stud, and made a dive for his collar drawer. He was fitting on a collar when Phyllis uttered a scream.

"I wish you wouldn't do that, dear," he said, quite mildly for him. "My nerves are a bit on edge this morning."

"But, darling, it's the will."

"The will? What will?"

"Miss Loughlade's, the funny old woman who used to live here."

"Well, that's nothing to be excited about. Since she didn't know us I don't suppose she can have left us anything."

"Don't you remember when we first came here, I went to a tea-party at the vicarage, and Miss Fraser told me about the will? And I told you when I came back, only you didn't seem to be listening."

"I remember your trying to tell me something about a will while I was trying to read the life of Rembrandt. Well, go on."

She stared at him bewilderedly; but then he was always bewildering her. "You don't remember me telling you about the reward of 250 pounds for whoever found it?"

"No, I can't say I do. I was interested in Rembrandt."

"She began to laugh."

"Was he quite human?"

"Dorling old idiot!" exclaimed Phyllis, who could hardly keep still. "I tell you again the old lady was known to make a will in favor of one of her nephews. The two witnesses came forward and attested to it, but the will couldn't be found. The nephew offered a reward of 250 pounds to anybody who found the will."

Rupert smiled.

"Congratulations, old darling. This is a bit of luck," he said.

"A bit of luck! It will get us out of debt and keep us going for months. Oh, leave off fidgeting with that tie and do get excited."

"What I want to know," said Rupert, impatiently now that he had found his collar stud, "is why the old dear wanted to stick her will under the floor where nobody would be likely to find it. Why on earth didn't she hand it over to her solicitors?"

"Old ladies of eighty-eight are apt to be suspicious. Perhaps she didn't trust lawyers."

Rupert considered this explanation and thought it feasible.

"Well, you haven't got to live to be eighty-eight for that," he conceded.

He went to her, smiling, and kissed her.

"So glad we've had a bit of luck, old girl. Thanks to you."

She hugged him, half hysterical, and wanted to dance with him. Very urgently he engaged himself over a windfall which was nothing short of a god-send? No, she'd always loved him but there were parts of his nature which she could never understand.

Meanwhile Rupert, serene but apparently unhealed, was striving on his way to continue his painting of the old water mill.

NEAREST THING HE KNEW

She shut off the gramophone and turned excitedly to her father.

"Dad," she exclaimed, "that is the latest kind of jazz record. Did you ever hear anything so wonderful?"

Father, who had been lying to read his evening paper, grunted.

"No," he replied wearily. "I can't say I have, although I once heard a collision between a wagon load of empty milk cans and a farm-cart filled with ducks."

The Road to Better Health

WHAT ARE ADHESIONS? (By Dr. William J. Scholes) Stedman's Medical Dictionary defines adhesions as "bands of more or less organized fibrous exudate thrown out on the surface of a serous membrane and connecting the opposing surfaces."

Now that you know exactly what they are let us go into a little detail regarding them.

The Peritonium
The abdominal cavity is lined with a serous membrane called the peritonium. This membrane also forms the covering of all organs in the abdomen. Its area is equal to nearly two-thirds that of the skin. It secretes a clear watery fluid (serum) which keeps the membrane soft and moist.

So smooth is this membrane that the intestines slip away from the sharpest object. Surgeons often carry their knife into the cavity with one sweep into the abdominal cavity without injuring the bowel. So delicate is the coating of the membrane that the slightest touch abrades it in the same way that the film on a photographic plate would be affected.

Peritonitis
When the peritonium is acutely inflamed its surface becomes roughened and more or less dry. The fluid loses its watery character and becomes thick and glue-like (fibrin). In chronic inflammation the irritation of the secreting coils causes them to become over-active and an over supply of serum is secreted. This reaches an appreciable amount we call it dropsy.

How Adhesions Are Formed
Adhesions are always a result of damage to the peritonium from inflammation, handling during surgical operations, etc. The normally smooth membrane is now covered with sticky fibrin, which causes all surfaces that come into contact adhere to each other. The fibrous exudate may be likened to tiny threads almost as delicate as the meshwork of a spider's web. These threads become organized and converted into fibrous bands which may grow as thick as one's finger.

Effects of Adhesions
In a well developed case the abdominal organs may be bound together in a mass so dense and intricate that the most skillful surgeon stands helpless before it. In other cases there may be but one or two isolated bands that can be readily removed. (Copyright.)

MAKE GIFT-GIVING EASY

If you wish to present a gift to the twenty-one-year-old Maharajah of Travancore, India, he will supply it for you. He recently decreed this. According to Hindu traditions, when a young man goes to pay his respects to his ruler he must offer a gift of either silk or silver or gold, and the gift must be according to his station in life. The personal fortunes of many of the princes have been built up on this principle. The Maharajah of Travancore realized the injustice of this practice, and now, if you go to see him, you will find at the entrance gate a man in attendance who will give you a roll of silk or a few gold sovereigns which you present to the ruler. He accepts these, and his secretary takes them back to the guardian of the gate for the next visitor.

A Breaking Out of Boils

An Evidence of Impure Blood

Boils are one of the worst afflictions of the human race, for just as soon as you think you are rid of one another crops up to take its place, seemingly, just to prolong your agony.

There is one way to eradicate these painful and misery causing pests from the system, and that is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing.

There is no better blood cleanser than Burdock Blood Bitters. It removes the foul matter from the blood, and when this is done the boils soon disappear.

Obituary

ALFRED NELSON

Alfred Nelson, oldest farmer of the Manno district, passed away suddenly last Thursday noon, Sept. 28th. He had just sat down to enjoy lunch in his home when the final summons came. The cause of death was heart failure.

Mr. Nelson was born in Akers Community, Smoland, Sweden, on February 25th, 1872. At the age of 20 he left the land of his fathers and sailed for America, locating at Worcester, Mass., where he lived for some time. In 1894 he joined the influx of people into central Alberta, locating on the farm which has since been his home. In 1906 he was united in marriage to Justina Anderson. Four children blessed their home, two of whom died in early years. Mrs. Nelson as called to her Eternal Reward three years ago.

Mr. Nelson was one of the progressive farmers of this community, a congenial neighbor, and a supporter of the Church of God. In late years he found peace with God and his life was filled with heavenly joy.

He was at the time of his passing, 60 years, 7 months and 3 days old. He leaves to mourn one daughter, Vivian, and one son Theodore, two brothers Henning and Joshua. A sister of this community, two sisters residing in Sweden, and other relatives and many friends.

Funeral services were held last Sunday afternoon in the Manno district church. A very large crowd had gathered to pay a final tribute. The P. E. Landerholm officiated, assisted by Rev. E. B. Anderson of Highland Park.

The interment took place in the Wetaskiwin cemetery.

(Edited by the Principal)

Parent-Teacher Association

On Monday evening approximately fifty parents and teachers met in the High School at the invitation of the Principal, and after a general discussion of matters of interest to all who have the welfare of the Wetaskiwin school at heart, the meeting was organized into the Parent-Teacher Association of Wetaskiwin. All parents and teachers became automatic members and it is to be hoped that at least a large majority of the parents will become active members by regular attendance at the meetings which will be held in the High School at eight o'clock in the evening on the first Monday of each month.

The purpose of this organization is to serve as a connecting link between the school and the home—that most essential factor in any community whose schools aim to function not only efficiently within the walls of the building but intelligently to the patrons as well. In order that the Principal and his staff may do their best work, and that it with a will, they need that strength which comes to them in the consciousness that at least the majority of the patrons do understand and appreciate the sound pedagogical and psychological principles which may underlie certain policies adopted by the staff, but the significance of which may be unintelligible to the less well-informed.

This wholesome mutual understanding between patrons and teachers in the matter of the school and its problems can be effected best by active membership in a live Parent-Teacher Association, and we are looking forward to another pleasant and profitable meeting in November.

BOY TAKES LONG JOURNEY

Adopted by his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Blench of Edmonton, eight-year-old Walter Houghton, travelled alone from Cape Town, South Africa, to the Alberta capital after his mother and father had died. The boy said he enjoyed the 13,000 mile trip and is eager to see his first snowfall.

The regular meeting of the Young People's Society was held Sunday evening after church with a good attendance. After a short period of business, the meeting was turned over to the members of the missionary group. A very instructive and beneficial program was provided, pointing out what the United Church of Canada is doing in mission work. The meeting was brought to a close by the repeating of the "Misph Benediction."

Lacombe Presbytery of the United Church met in their regular Fall session at Ponoka on Tuesday. Officers elected for the ensuing year are Rev. L. Leard of Clive as chairman, and Rev. H. Parker of Millet as secretary, and Dr. Sharpe of Lacombe as treasurer. Routine business was readily dispatched. The problems incident to the vanishing revenues in the funds for missionary and maintenance were something that taxed the mind of the meeting. Various projects in connection with religious education were endorsed and plans laid for a forward movement this winter. A full attendance of the members was recorded. Altogether a good session.

Junior farm clubs in Alberta have reached their highest record this year, numbering 176 with over 2,800 members, a considerable increase over last year. Homesteads for Dry Area Farmers' mines department a special area of homestead land in Northern Alberta, south-west of the Little Smoky River south of Falher along the Northern Alberta Railway, has been set aside for settlement by farmers from the drought areas in south-eastern Alberta. Under the re-settlement policy, some 190 families have been, since middle summer, removed from the dry area to various parts in Northern Alberta, and it is expected that the movement may total to 400 families. Oil Production Oil production in Alberta for August totalled 77,192 barrels, of which 82,200 was Turner Valley naphtha. Autumn Grasshopper Battle Possibility of another outbreak of grasshoppers in southern Alberta.

next spring has led the provincial department of agriculture to issue special warning to farmers to fall cultivate the land. Plowing infested stubble is the most effective tillage practice, but this must be done six inches deep with a mould-board plough, with the furrow slice inverted. Where this cannot be carried out satisfactorily, shallow cultivation with a disc, cultivator or harrow, is recommended. Hopper eggs have already been noticed as far north as Elmore, Ramsey and Delburne.

RESTORES HEARING

A remarkable invention by a well known Stockholm physician, Vilhelm Naselli, which solves a 300-year-old medico-technical problem was publically demonstrated for the first time by the inventor at the recent congress in Oslo of ear, nose and throat specialists. It is an artificial tympanic membrane made of thin transparent material called "Cellofan," which can be substituted for a broken or missing tympanic membrane, and in this way restore the hearing without the slightest inconvenience to the patient. Dr. Naselli says that in many cases deaf persons do not even know their deafness is caused by a damaged membrane, and he therefore hopes his new method will prove to be a boon to many. The cellofan membrane is considerably thinner than the natural one. It is only 0.02 millimetres thick, weighs between two and three milligrams and can easily be fixed in the ear.

One of the richest wheat producing areas of southern Alberta the Macleod and Aldersay districts, estimate this season's yield at about 4,000,000 bushels compared to last year's figure of 12,000,000.

MARVEL OF SPIDER'S WEB

There are few things more beautiful and symmetrical than the "cart-wheel" web found in the garden, spun from the 150 spinners which the garden spider carries at the hinder extremity of the abdomen. It is a marvel of engineering, perfected which never miscarries.

The radiating "guy ropes" are first made secure, and these form the foundation of the exquisite web. The whorls which form the web. The strength of the web is amazing, generally resisting the desperate struggles of the biggest blue-bottle or the fattest moth! The silk of some tropic species will even hold small birds.

The cobwebs which are the base of the housewife are mainly the debris of the funnel-shaped webs of the common house spider. These traps are much denser and more untidy-looking than the garden spider's wonderful creation.

There is a little spider which is a great aviator. Naturalists tell us that the upper regions of the air are sometimes alive with millions of migrating spiders, borne through the air on filaments of silk. Usually these spiders take off in vast numbers from grass stems and, when desirous of landing, simply haul in the threads and sink to earth.

But the common water spider is perhaps the most ingenious of the tribe. He has anticipated the diving bell and the "bathysphere." The simple experiment of pressing an inverted tumbler into water demonstrates the fact that the imprisoned air effectively prevents the entrance of a single drop and leaves the inside of the glass dry. That is the principle of the diving-bell.

The water spider actually spins a silken envelope among submerged plants and inflates the nest with air. The bell is constructed so that its mouth points downwards, and in this air-filled chamber the female deposits her eggs. Should the air of the nursery become foul, some of it is released by lifting one edge of the bell mouth.

Sleepless nights? Try these favorite recipes from all over the world for winning the favors of Morpheus: Count the number of people you know.

SHE ATE ALL-BRAN TWELVE YEARS WITH FINE RESULTS

Delicious Cereal Relieves Constipation

Read this very enthusiastic letter:

"Something like eleven or twelve years ago, I began eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. When I started, it was called simply Kellogg's Bran, and I believe it was one of the first products of the kind on the market."

"My friends often laugh at my fondness for ALL-BRAN. It gives such a clean taste in the mouth, and I do not feel satisfied until I have had my ALL-BRAN."

"If the Kellogg Company should ever stop manufacturing ALL-BRAN, here is one who would be greatly disappointed."—Miss Amy Person. (Address furnished upon request.)

Science says that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. How much safer than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Just eat two tablespoons daily for most types of constipation. For serious cases, try it three times daily. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Sold in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Macleod, Sept. 28.—United Farmers of Alberta and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation are practically one, Norman F. Priestly, vice-president of the U.F.A., and provincial chairman of the C.C.F. intimated, addressing a U.F.A. rally here.

TO SLAUGHTER 2,000 BUFFALO AT WAINWRIGHT

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—Slaughter of 2,000 buffalo in Wainwright National park, Alberta, has been sanctioned by the government. Tenders are being requested for purchase of the hides during November and December. The animals to be killed are 50 bulls, two years of age; 150 bulls, three years old; 200 cows, three years old; and 1,150 aged cows and bulls.

The buffalo herds in Canada's National Parks increase very rapidly and steps have to be taken periodically to reduce them.

The Wainwright Park has feeding capacity for 5,000 buffalo, the herd at present numbering 7,000. Last year the herd was reduced by 1,200. The killing of the buffalo will be done on a commercial basis. The herds will be gathered in corrals, where those to be slaughtered will be selected. The killing will be done by an expert with a rifle and the carcass will be treated in a government abattoir in the park. The meat will be sold to the highest bidder.

HAS SLIM CHANCE NOW

The pedestrian has a hard enough time as it is; he must hop quickly with a car coming dead at him at 40 miles per hour. If the speed of the car were stepped up to 125 miles per hour he would have no chance whatever. If he stood still he would be struck so hard that identification would be difficult; if he jumped with sufficient agility to escape he would have to strain his back and injure his arches for life. The extent of the jump which he makes today would be a futile gesture. The leap which would deliver him from a car speeding at 40 miles per hour would be of no use whatever when pitted as a safety measure against one speeding 125 miles an hour.

It is better tea

ALCOHOL FROM GRAIN UNECONOMIC

From time to time suggestions have been made that surplus grain in Canada might well be used for the production of industrial alcohol for motor fuel purposes. However, Professor J. W. Shipley of the University of Alberta, reports that such a project would be a doubtful business. Grain alcohol alone is not a satisfactory fuel for engines designed primarily for the use of gasoline—he reports.

GOOD MOTTO TO ADOPT

Printed on one large transport in Eastern Canada are words: "Our motto is courtesy. If this truck hogs the road, notify this company." Many people wish that every transport and bus company would not only adopt but practice this motto. The way many of the drivers of large transports and buses hog the centre of the road is dangerous to general traffic and those in authority should make an example of some of them in an endeavour to show that the business or pleasure car has some rights on our highways.

TROUBLE WITH RUSSIA OVER WHEAT AGREEMENT

Russia has kicked over the traces in regard to the international wheat agreement and demanded the right to export 90 million bushels instead of 48. Representatives from Russia have been in conference with the supervising body with no agreement so far. It would appear that the Russian wheat crop this year, particularly in the regions adjacent to the Black Sea, is a very good one and already some 14 million bushels have been sold to Great Britain. Should Russia refuse to come to an agreement and commence a policy of dumping wheat in European markets, such a course might cause a serious situation. Negotiations are being continued at the present time.

SOIL EXHAUSTION

A 25-bushel crop of wheat (grain) moves from the soil about 30 pounds of nitrogen, 12 pounds of phosphoric acid, and 7 pounds of potash. A 200-bushel crop of potatoes (tubers) removes about 42 pounds of nitrogen, 118 pounds of phosphoric acid, and 40 pounds of potash. If the mean of these figures for wheat and potatoes is taken and it is assumed that the average amounts represent the normal draft made by the growth of crops on the three plant food substances (nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash) it may be estimated that cropping results in an annual loss to the soil of 36 pounds of nitrogen, 15 pounds of phosphoric acid and 33 pounds of potash.
